

5 images formed by light on said image sensor into electrical signals, an image processor coupled to the output of the image sensor for processing raw electrical signals from the image sensor to produce formatted image signals, and an optical system for selectively directing light entering said housing through said first and second light apertures onto said image sensor.

[illegible]